

AAT eNews & Views Newsletter

Hello there,

It seems we are now well and truly adjusting to this new normal way of life which has been chaotic for the best of us. One of the biggest challenges has been discovering who we are as accounting advisors when traditional work situations have changed so much and will continue to change.

Once upon a time, it was easy to speak up and command attention from our peers and clients, especially in a face-to-face environment, but now the workplace dynamic has shifted, and we need to find our voice in other ways.

I say this as you must find your voice, so you don't get unheard or lost in those video calls by the same people who continue to speak the loudest.

For me, finding my voice was realising who I didn't want to be and how I could use my voice and portray my values without losing family, friends, and clients.
